Jim Thorpe, the First Native American to Win an Olympic Gold Medal

Jim Thorpe was a Native American who took part in the 1912 Summer Olympics and won several medals. On his first day there, Thorpe started with the 100-meter race which he ran in the best time in the world until it was beaten thirty-six years later. On his second day, Thorpe couldn't find his shoes. He didn't have time to look for them and so he got two different ones from the garbage instead. He still won that day. On the final day, he had to throw the javelin[1] and he nearly broke it with one of his tries. The last event was the 1,500-meter run and Thorpe was still in the trainers that didn't match because he had failed to find his original ones. Although Jim Thorpe was a great American athlete, he was asked to return his medals seven months after the 1912 Olympics. It happened because it was discovered that he had been a semi-professional baseball player, and the Olympics were only for amateurs at that time.

National Parks in Scotland

Good news for nature lovers: Scotland is going to have a brand-new national park soon! And where will the new park be? There've been lots of places suggested by people from all over the nation. Will it be Scotland's highest mountain and the area around it? It will be decided in the next few years. The final location of the park could be chosen either because people think it's a beautiful place, or because it's historically interesting. The brand-new national park is going to join the first and the second already existing: Cairngorms National Park created in 2003 and Loch Lomond & The Trossachs National Park created a year earlier. The term national park also brings many changes to local people. For example, with more tourists, there will be more local businesses and more jobs. Although tourists also mean pollution, people living in the areas around the parks aren't unhappy about the changes.

Dan Jones from Utah turned to Facebook for advice when he found himself locked inside the 24-Hour Fitness gym late on Saturday night. 'Doesn't the name suggest that they stay open 24 hours?' Jones wrote in his Facebook post. Although his Facebook friends gave him a lot of advice, it was not useful. So, he left the app and called his wife, who suggested not moving much and waiting until morning. She was afraid the alarm system would start making a loud noise if Dan was moving around and that would get the police to arrive. But Dan decided to do just the opposite of what she said. He then sat down and waited for the police. When they came, they caught Dan sitting on the floor. He explained that he was no thief, he had just got locked inside. So they let him out and he didn't have to sleep there. What had happened was that the opening hours were currently 4 am – midnight. The gym manager had changed them from 24 hours a day the previous week.

Act of Kindness: Reward for Delivery Drivers

Blog by Jennifer Woodbridge November 24, 2024

I started leaving a box with little presents for delivery drivers at my door last November. It was a way of thanking them for their hard work. Apart from thank-you notes, I left energy drinks in the box, along with other things. In December I added Christmas biscuits. They ended up being the most popular among the drivers, so this year they are in the box already even though it is only November! Today I'm going to add energy drinks to the box after I buy them. I haven't had the time yet as I was making thank-you notes. I'm going to put them into the box tomorrow. What is still missing is chewing gum. It was popular last year as well. This time I'll buy special Christmas gum online. The sale begins in ten days, and as soon as I've got it, I'm going to add it to the box. What do you think about such a way of saying thank you to delivery drivers?

Airbus A340 Plane Lands in Antarctica for the First Time

On November 2, 2021, an Airbus A340 landed in Antarctica for the first time in history. The flight was ordered and paid for by an extreme tourism company called White Desert to make sure the Antarctic expedition could continue as it was running out of food and other supplies out there. Landing a plane in Antarctica was a new experience due to the lack of an airport there. The first recorded flight to Antarctica was a small plane ninety years ago. It made short trips to help scientists create an accurate map of the continent's shores. The crew of the Airbus A340 also took photos of the shores to show their families. The captain also added, 'White Desert will hire us to keep flying tourists and scientists to and from Antarctica. Getting people there and picking them up from there will be quicker with us than with the ship they've been using so far.'

(www.edition.cnn.com, inspirováno)

29 Why did White Desert send an aircrew to Antarctica?

A) to pick people up from there
B) to try out the new airport there
C) to take new photos of its shores for scientists
D) to bring essential things to people staying there

The Movie Hotel

2227 Ocean Boulevard, Miami Beach, Florida

The Movie Hotel was built in 2017 and it has been extremely popular since then. It makes its owner James K. Wright, an American movie fan, really happy. He can't imagine doing anything else now besides running the hotel. Luckily, one summer his Dutch cousin suggested building this hotel, otherwise James would probably still have his boring bank office job today. James' parents, as well as his grandma, help him run the hotel he owns and he lets them live there with him for free.

The hardest part about building and opening The Movie Hotel was getting the permissions necessary to start. While regular permissions took only months to get, other permissions took longer. It was mainly because the hotel was planned to consist of seven apartments created to look exactly like certain movie or TV show sets[1]. Therefore, James K. Wright had to ask the TV and movie companies whether he could create copies of their movie or TV show sets for his hotel. Two agreed almost immediately while some took a year to answer and others refused so James had to ask someone else. However, when you arrive at the hotel, you will see why the three years of waiting for the companies to say yes were absolutely worth it.

To book an apartment in The Movie Hotel, just visit www.themoviehotel.com. The website is super easy to use. Visitors can even have fun trying to book an apartment for less money than usual: all they have to do is answer twenty questions in a quiz regarding the corresponding movie / TV show correctly in two minutes. The only other way to pay less is early booking.

The Top 3 Apartments

The Friends Apartment
Who wouldn't remember Monica and Rachel's apartment in New York? A large living room, two bedrooms, Monica's kitchen and the purple door with a golden frame on it! A basket of free cookies on the table will welcome the guests. Baking your own cookies in the apartment's oven is impossible as the only thing that actually works in the kitchen is the fridge. The apartment has two bedrooms. One person can stay in each, of course, but booking it for more guests is also possible. There is a double bed in each of the bedrooms and a big couch in the living room. And the view? Guests can see the Atlantic Ocean through palm trees. If the apartment wasn't on the third floor, but higher, the Atlantic could be seen more clearly.
Booking: There is only one week left this autumn! Don't wait, book now!

The Bridget Jones Apartment
Welcome to a cozy apartment for one, in which Bridget Jones dealt with her life, often with a bottle of wine. Guests will find several bottles of wine in the fridge so they can sit on the couch with a glass and enjoy their stay in the apartment. They can drink as many bottles of wine as they like, but only one of them is part of the apartment cost. Others will be charged as extra when the guests check out. Guests can also enjoy the view from the apartment. Now that the owner has moved it from the second floor one floor higher, guests have a great view of the city of Miami.
Booking: The earliest available reservation is for next autumn.

The Big Bang Theory Apartment
Enjoy making hot tea and drinking it while sitting in Sheldon's spot on the couch! Yes indeed, guests will even find the main character's favourite spot in the apartment! Guests have permission from the owner to do any activity from the TV show, except for karaoke. Although the apartment is large and more than two people could stay, the owner only allows booking for two. The apartment is on the top floor with a view of the ocean.
Booking: Two autumn weeks are still available in this year's almost fully booked season.

Spiders

Blog by Kenny Murphy

Some people might be afraid of certain places, situations or objects so much that their fear can cause problems in their lives. I was scared of spiders, so I was happy to take part in the 'Friendly Spider Programme' at the London Zoo, which helps people get over their fear of these creatures. The programme started with an introduction after which we had a group session. Everybody tried to explain why they hated spiders. Most ladies couldn't stand the way spiders get from one place to another. Most men didn't care about spiders' movements, but they hated their black bodies. Just the idea of touching spiders made their hearts beat much faster. Others experienced the same feeling every time a spider web touched their skin. Only a few people admitted hating spiders because they have long legs. Some people couldn't stand more things than just one, but that wasn't my case: I only hated the same thing as most of the ladies did. But while our reasons were different, our reaction to spiders was not – we were terrified of them.

After the chat, it was time for relaxation exercises with an instructor. He kept telling us, 'From now on, you will be calm and just fine when you see a spider.' And I tried my best to relax. But when I closed my eyes, I couldn't avoid seeing myself with a spider in my hand and I started to feel nervous again. The pictures I created in my mind were scary. However, the exercises helped and just after they were over, I felt calm. I'd managed to make all my fear disappear. And then the most difficult part of the programme came, a practical exercise: London Zoo's spider expert David Clarke took us to meet and touch spiders. He was excited about it and so were some other people, but not me because it was still difficult for me to be so close to spiders, and I wasn't sure what my reaction would be. In the end I did it and I'm really excited that I experienced it.

I was sent to the programme by chance to write an article about it for the magazine I was working for. My boss loved spiders and even kept one at home. Luckily, he avoided having a spider at work. But it was perfect timing as well: I was planning to go on a two-week trip to a tropical forest with my new girlfriend and I didn't want to let my fear of spiders spoil it. She stopped being afraid of spiders weeks before for the same reason. She is far from being a fan of them, but she is able to ignore them now. I had my goal in mind when the expert put a spider in my hand during the programme in the zoo. I could hold it with little difficulty. I did it! Thanks to the 'Friendly Spider Programme' spiders didn't bother me anymore. When I called my mum to tell her, I thought she'd say I'd wasted my time, but my mum was so proud of me!

My life without a fear of spiders has been cool. When I travel, for example, I no longer check my hotel room for spiders. It used to be the first thing I did, and I often found one. I know some people hit it with their shoe as hard as they can when they see one. I can't make myself do that. Besides, I'd have to get rid of its little dead body afterwards. Sure, I can ask the cleaning service to vacuum it up. I'd like to be able to vacuum up a dead spider one day too. See, after the experience in the London Zoo, I'm proud to say that I pick the spider up, quickly carry it outside and shut the door. My girlfriend might prefer me hitting the spider, but I'd rather it lived. However, I hope that one day I will pay no attention to a spider when I see it. I'll let it be. That would be cool!
