The Hair-Freezing Contest

Once a year, the natural hot pool near Whitehorse, Canada, becomes an arena for the world's only Hair-Freezing Contest. To take part, people in the pool put their heads underwater and rise back up into the freezing air. They then carefully shape their wet hair into fancy hairstyles that freeze. The best hairstyle wins. The pool belongs to the Takhini Hot Pools company. Andrew Umbrich, its present manager, said: 'It all began in 2011 when the previous manager organised the first contest. He was responsible for the first contests which were relatively small – around 15 people took part in each. But it has all changed and the last competition with such a small number of people took place in 2013. The following year I became the manager of the company, so in fact I was in charge of the contest, and began organising it right away. And yes, we were successful! Almost 50 people took part in 2014. Immediately after that I began organising the 2015 contest. And since then the number of people has grown to 300.'

The 1904 Olympic Games Marathon – Strangest Race Ever?

People remember the 1904 Olympic Games marathon as the strangest race ever. That year the marathon took place in St. Louis, Missouri, on a very hot summer day. Maybe that was why one of the runners took a car ride after only 14 km of the race. After an 18-km ride, he got out and ran to the finish line. But the organizers knew about it. So, instead of becoming the winner, he was forbidden to take part in any running race in the future. Another runner stopped in the middle of the race to eat some apples. They weren't good and gave him a stomachache. He finished the race in the end, without winning any prize. However, he still managed to finish sooner than the runner who was surprised by some wild dogs during the race, preventing him from winning! A different runner felt so unwell during the race that he even seriously started thinking about quitting after running only half of it! That's when his coaches got to him and helped him continue running. So, he did and won. But the world has never seen a more exhausted gold medallist.

26 What does the text say about the winner of the 1904 Olympic Games marathon?

A) He ate bad fruit during the race.
B) He met wild dogs during the race.
C) He wanted to leave the race in the middle.
D) He was banned from running races in the future.

Les Jones, an 83-year-old man from Yorkshire, went to see his son's family in London last week. On Saturday night, he offered to buy the family and himself a meal. His son Gareth said, 'Dad wanted to buy fish and chips. We let him, and he gave me his card to pay for it to be delivered. When I told him the bill for four meals was £54, he absolutely couldn't believe it.' Gareth wrote a tweet about it on X and people started posting comments about the prices of fish and chips in their areas, making fun of the high prices in London. Les Jones later joked that now he might need therapy to deal with paying such a high price. His son Gareth said, 'The meals were delicious, and people's reactions to my tweet gave Dad a lot of laughs. He was glad that so many people found the story funny.' Les Jones recovered from the unpleasant surprise by having some red wine and a chat with his son's family about shopping in London.

Paper Prom[1] Dress

We all know that prom is the best night in high school, but Haley Pritchett from Arkansas made it even more special. She decided to do so after seeing a paper dress made out of The Twilight Saga: Twilight book pages on TikTok. But Haley thought she could make a better dress. She created a dress for herself out of her favourite childhood book. With her mother's help, Haley spent hours creating the dress. While doing that, they watched many movies, including Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone. It is based on the book of the same name that Haley chose to make her dress from. To complete her look, Haley combined the paper dress with dramatic makeup, making her look like a character from the book Alice in Wonderland. 'I love this dress as it allowed me to wear the words that once brought me so much joy,' says Haley. She also promised to create a prom dress for her sister from The Hobbit, or There and Back Again, a book she loves.

Cheddar Man

The 9,000-year-old bones of a man were found in a cave in Cheddar, England. The man was nicknamed 'Cheddar Man'. His DNA was tested and it was discovered that one of his living relatives, Mr Targett, was a history teacher in a nearby town! Scientists created a picture of Cheddar Man based on the DNA testing. Then they visited Mr Targett and they were very surprised – he looked just like Cheddar Man! Only Mr Targett's skin was different colour than Cheddar Man's. Mr Targett said, 'It's amazing! We are separated by thousands of years but linked by DNA. And we still look alike after all that time – even our eyes are the same colour. The scientists told me some interesting facts about him, except for what killed him. They didn't know at that time. Only much later they were able to say that he had died of head injuries,' says Targett. What no one is sure of is why only Cheddar Man was discovered in that cave. It was usual to be buried in a cave at his time but not alone.

Costume Dance Party in the gym

Friday, June 24th, 6 pm – 1 am

TICKETS & CONTACTS

Tickets are only $5 and you can get them from Ross Geller or Rachel Green. Ross will be selling them every day at school from June 16th to June 23rd while Rachel will go on with the sale until the party starts.

You can find Ross and Rachel's phone numbers on the list of the Costume Dance Party organisers on the newly created website www.cchs-danceparty.com. Note that the website is password protected. To enter, it is important that you don't confuse your student personal identification number (SPIN) with the code to your school locker. Your SPIN is a combination of six digits[1] while your lock code has four. Your party password is the longer code, but without the last digit! Make sure you're entering the right password.

NOTE

If you have relatives or friends from other high schools who can help with food, drinks and/or decorations, feel free to ask them to help us! Please do not promise them any tickets to the event as nobody else apart from you and the school staff can attend it.

Safety: For safety reasons, you will get a wristband for identification upon entering the event. Please note that we will prevent everybody from entering the school building twice. Keep that in mind if you consider leaving the school for a while and then coming back to the party.

BEST COSTUME

Witches, wizards, princes and princesses, movie characters and others – dress as you like and make the best of it! The Best Costume winner will be decided by a secret vote. The start of the competition will be announced at 9 pm. You will have until midnight to vote. The winner gets a cake!

BEST MAKEUP

The top three makeup looks will be announced. Unlike the first-place winner, who will receive a signed card from the actor who plays the lead role in the Harry Potter films based on the books, the second- and third-place winners will each receive a Harry Potter book signed by J. K. Rowling.

MUSIC

The choice of music for this year's Costume Dance Party is Rock 'n' Roll from the 1950s. It was chosen because of the famous band Bill Haley & the Comets live performance in our school seven decades ago. They played live at the dance party, which was a huge success. You will hear the recordings of the live show at the party.

PRE-PARTY WORKSHOPS

COSTUME DESIGN

To learn how to make a costume, come to school on the last Saturday before the party. You can finish your costume at the workshop or continue at home the next day on Sunday the 19th. Please let us know if you are coming by June 11th at the latest. We will start at 10 am and finish at 4 pm. Note: The school parking lot will be partially closed. The church opposite the school has offered their parking spaces. A school bus can bring those without a ride from home. It will arrive at 9:55 am at the Main bus station. Bring your own sandwiches or snacks; tea and other hot drinks will be provided without any charge.

PARTY DECORATIONS

Come to school to help the organisers create party decorations for the Friday, June 24th party. You will learn a lot of tricks and you can use them to create party decorations for your own home. Please sign up no later than the 10th. The workshop takes place on June 18th (Saturday), we start at 9 am (no latecomers!) and end at 5:30 pm, so please bring your own food and drinks unless you don't mind paying for hot refreshments available there. If you don't have a ride to the workshop, we have volunteers who can drive you in their cars if you live near them. To get home, you can hop on a school bus that leaves at 5:45 pm.

The Hollensbury Spite House in Alexandria, Virginia

If you ever visit Alexandria, Virginia, don't miss the Old Town. It's a big attraction for visitors especially because of a local sightseeing hit: a famous house called the Hollensbury Spite House. The house was built in the 1830s and John Hollensbury built it on a narrow path in between his and his neighbour's house. People used to take a shortcut through that path and make a lot of noise, which really annoyed John. So, he decided to make those people angry by building a house and making it impossible for them to walk there. The house is 7 feet wide and it is considered the narrowest house in the USA. In fact, there is no smaller house in the USA. It was named Spite House because it was built to annoy others as well as three other old Spite Houses in Alexandria. They were built at different locations but in the same time period when John built his. The same method was used to build them all, which, of course, was different from modern building methods.

However, local people say that there are more possible explanations for the house's origin. One is that John's friend, who lived in the neighbouring house kept riding his horse carriages[1] through the narrow path in between their houses. The horse carriages often hit John's walls, damaging them. So, John decided to build the Spite House to stop that. That friend of his never spoke to him again because of what John did. Another explanation is that Hollensbury built the Spite house just to show that he could afford it. As he owned a factory that produced building materials, he could save a lot of money. Another possible explanation is that Hollensbury built the house as a playhouse for his two little children. And indeed, one of the first owner's daughters moved in there as a young woman later on.

After the Hollensbury family had died, the Hollensbury Spite House was used as a classroom for some time before it turned back into a family home. In 1990, businessman Jack Sammis bought the house for $130,000. Local people worried he might want the house to serve as a location for his business. However, Sammis had no such plans for the former family home. Instead, Jack and his wife stay in the house during their weeks off in summer. They also love spending Thanksgiving there with their friends. Because of its historic value, Jack and his wife let schools bring their students to see the inside of the house for free during the year.

After buying the house, Jack Sammis made some changes to the inside of the house. Some of the original details were changed. For example, the brown wooden floors were painted light green. The rooms now look a bit bigger because of it. The heating and cooling system was moved to a small space under the roof and the water heater, which used to be in the kitchen, was moved to an upstairs wardrobe. Due to the original size of the front door, which Jack didn't want to give up, large furniture could not be brought in. That's why Jack had to buy smaller pieces of furniture from local antique stores.

Jack Sammis' wife loves the house. She says, 'When my friends come to visit us, they say it's so cosy! Like the best hotel room! I have a different opinion, but I'm glad they love it. When I enter, I imagine I am a little girl again, playing with my toys, little wooden babies, at their small home. Sometimes my husband suggests renting the house to movie companies. He wants to know what it feels like to be at a place where someone is making a movie. I disagree because I'm worried that the house would become too attractive for tourists. They would keep trying to see the inside, as if it were a museum. To me, however, the house feels just the opposite – so full of life. It's a great house!'
